A DOCTOR'S HARD TRIP.

Not Always Easy For a Maine Physician to Reach His Patients.

The other day a country physician received a call to go from his place in a lumber camp in the far Bransford region, and it was such a call as a doctor cannot well refuse. So he went to West Cove, on Moosehead, with a big coat and wearing leggings and shoe packs, as the low moccasins are called. A lumberman was there, and this man had made arrangements to carry the doctor up as far as West Outlet on a handcar on the Canadian Pacific road. They had to stop once and unload the handcar on to their backs in a gully so that a freight train could go past.

Above West Outlet a certain portion of the lake surface was free of snow, and the doctor and the woodsman guide strapped on their skates and started. There were numerous "wrinkles," huge bulging rifts in the ice where the moving of the mighty surface had met and made ruin. When they came to one of these wrinkles, the woodsman went ahead and prodded and poked until he found a place where they could cross.

It is possible that more men have been drowned in the waters of Moosehead by carelessness in crossing wrinkles than by any other cause.

By the time they got to the mouth of Moosehead river the doctor was obliged to own to his sturdy companion that he was fair tuckered. The man had a mouse sled there in the bushes. He had left it there when he had come out after the doctor. He piled the medicine man on with his case, wrapped him in blankets and set away along the tote road. There was no team out, for there was much uncertainty as to when the doctor would be able to get along.

When he could, he walked. The rest of the time he rode. The tough little man of the woods seemed in no wise wearied. He told the doctor that it was easy enough to make those kind of trips when one was toughened to it. In the camp was one of the bosses who had been caught in a snub line and who had had most of the flesh on the calf of his leg rasped off by the cruel cable.

The doctor did what he could for the sufferer. Before he finished his labors there a messenger came from a camp ten miles above. They had learned that a physician was in the section, and they wanted him. Ten men were down with grip and colds and two had pneumonia. So the doctor went up to that camp. There was nothing else to do. He says that if he had refused he guesses they would have loaded him on a sled willy nilly and would have taken him along. He came out after six days in the woods.—Lewiston Journal.

Rats and the Plague in Honolulu.
Honolulu is rousing itself to the danger it runs from rats, animals which by common consent of scientific men are the most certain agents for the dissemination of the bubonic plague.

Rats take the plague easily and carry it for a considerable time before they die. After being stricken they retire to their holes, where they hide for days until pain and terror drive them out to court the society of human beings. They enter kitchens where cooking is going on; they seek occupied beds at night; they get underfoot in one's drawing room; they enter the nurseries where children play. In this stage of the disease infection goes with them like an atmosphere. When dead and not destroyed by human beings, they are likely to be eaten by roving members of their own species, thus increasing rat mortality, or they may be eaten by the family pet cat.

So long as rats are in a city where the bubonic plague has taken lodgment every one will be in danger.—Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

No Room For More Patients.
Mrs. Wicks—The committee has requested me to make a dozen pies for the charity bazaar.

Mr. Wicks—What is the object of the bazaar, my dear?

Mrs. Wicks—To raise funds for the free hospital.

Mr. Wicks—But I understand the hospital is already overcrowded.

Mrs. Wicks—Yes, I believe it is.

Mr. Wicks—Then for goodness' sake don't donate any of your pies.—Chicago News.

RHODES' COMPANY WILL ARM TROOPS

London Paper Says No Longer
Need to Conceal Fact.

BOER REPUBLICS DOOMED

No Proposals Including Independence Will Be Entertained—Speedy End of War Expected—Company's Forces to Patrol Territory.

LONDON, March 10.—Charles Williams, the military expert of The Morning Leader, says today:

General Sir Frederick Carrington's staff has been selected and the names turn out to be those of retired officers.
For there is no longer any need to conceal the fact that he is going to South Africa by arrangement between the government and the chartered company to take command of the force which the company will pay for, though he may be some time occupied in policing the territory of the two republics which may fall into our hands pending a political settlement.

"It is hoped to begin re-embarking the bulk of the British forces in South Africa by July 1.

"It is said that General Buller still expects to see the derby run, but that is too good to be true. Yet many things may happen in 11 or 12 weeks, as things are going."

This, taken in connection with Cecil Rhodes' statement, that the chartered company would buy artillery for Kimberley, shows conclusively that the company intends to have arms and an army of its own.

Presidents Kruger and Stern have put forward their first overtures looking to an ending of the war, but their efforts are certain to be futile, inasmuch as they insist that the preservation of the independence of the two republics be guaranteed first of all.

Judging from the temper of the British people, as displayed recently, and from opinions of the press this morning, there is but one possible conclusion, namely, the complete subjugation of the Boers, the taking away of the independence of the two republics and the incorporation of their territory in a crown colony.

Nothing less than this will satisfy the war party of the empire, which at present has full control. According to The Daily Mail correspondent at Pretoria, these Boer representations have been telegraphed to Lord Salisbury.

A GREAT INTER-STATE FAIR.

Atlanta's Business Men Decide to Hold It Next October.

ATLANTA, March 10.—At a mass meeting of Atlanta's business men it has been decided to hold a southern interstate fair here next fall.

The big fair will open Oct. 10 and close Oct. 27. This will give 15 open days for the fair, and the fixing of the exact date at this time, it is thought, will forestall any possible conflict with the dates that may be made by other fairs.

The guarantee fund of the southern interstate fair will be $15,000, $5,000 more than that of the fund raised last year. With this amount in hand it is thought that the size of the fair can be made fully double that held last year, as of the $10,000 guarantee fund raised by popular subscription for the state fair, fully one-half was expended on the repair of the buildings and in other ways that will not be necessary this year.

Every indication points to the southern interstate fair being one of the biggest and best that has ever been held in the south.

Golf in South Africa.

The Johannesburg club has a number of Dutch boys as caddies. When the new course was opened, a vast number of balls were lost among the rocks.
One little Dutch boy brought a market basket and succeeded in half filling it, and when asked what he was going to do with the balls said that his father was going to join the club and had told him to find them.

Testimonial From Judge Gaston.

GREENVILLE, Ala., Aug. 10, 1896.

I take great pleasure in certifying to the purity and the merit of Wilkinson's Matchless Mineral Water. This natural mineral water, from personal knowledge, is taken from a well three miles east of Greenville, in the exact condition in which it is sold. I have seen this water used, with wonderful success, for dyspepsia, indigestion, sore eyes and for eruptive diseases, sores and diseases on man and animals. As a remedy for these troubles, I do not believe its equal exists. It is highly recommended by physicians for a number of diseases.
